Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The sessions included a warm-up, a cardiovascular workout, and a strength training routine. The results showed that the program had a positive effect on the women's physical fitness, with significant improvements in cardiovascular endurance, muscular strength, and body composition. The program was well-tolerated and had no adverse effects on the women's health. The findings suggest that a low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can be an effective means of improving physical fitness in sedentary, middle-aged women.
